Welcome to the Newsletter!

What can you expect each month? We'll open up with a picture from a flight and a quote. To your left you will find stats from the prior month.

On the page(s) that follow will be excerpts and links of recent articles, and maybe an "oldie but a goodie." I'll include a book review, and "Kathy's Corner" with observations and advice from the right seat.

Oshkosh 2023 – In the Books with an Award

EAA Airventure was a success! My wife and I had a wonderful trip, and came away with the 2023 Lindy Award for "Outstanding Mooney" in the Contemporary Category which covers 1956-1970 era planes.

Book Review: West with the Night by Beryl Markham

Beryl Markham became the first woman to fly east to west across the Atlantic. She made her record setting 21-hour and 25-minute flight over the 4th and 5th of September, 1936.

But her book is so much more than that flight. It paints the picture of growing up in East Africa during the early 1900's and everything that you can imagine that entails.

As long as it's not in that weather...

From February 2017

I was looking for a title for this post. That was my son's response to my question of "So, will you go flying with me again?" In all fairness, my answer to him was "I don't really want to fly again in that weather either."

The O2Cool personal necklace fan, a must for those hot days in the cockpit, or watching an afternoon airshow.

KUNU - Dodge County Airport

If you've got to get to Dodge (to get outta Dodge) then stop here. Yes, the toilets matched the sinks, but the lunch spread asking only for donations was heaven on earth...
